We cannot guarantee that you can complete a course in the minimum time allowed. At certain times of the year, instructors may not be available for rapid grading of assignments and exams. This is particularly true during winter holidays, near the end of terms, and in summer months.

It is your responsibility to complete a given course within the constraints indicated here. If you are facing a personal deadline, before the 30-day withdrawal period is up, you should verify that the instructor's schedule permits him or her to grade your work quickly enough for you to meet your deadline.
